The Idea of Labour Law

Edited by Guy Davidov, Vice-Dean and Elias Lieberman Chair in Labour Law at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and Brian Langille, Professor of Law at the University of Toronto

- Articulates a new way of conceptualizing labour law and its future by some of the world's leading labour scholars
- A critical review of the basic values and aims of the field in light of the challenges of today's labour market practices and globalization
- Uses a comparative approach to encourage reflection on the future of labour law across a wide number of jurisdictions

Readership: Labour law academics, graduate students, other law students, policy-makers, labour law practitioners.
